SOLICITATION OF UNCLASSIFIED WORK PROJECTS
FOR THE INTERIM ASSIGNMENT SECTION

1. The Interim Assignment Section, Office of Personnel, is a training and holding pool for newly appointed clerical, typist, and stenographic personnel who have received provisional security clearances. The principal reason for maintaining this activity is to enable the Agency to offer immediate employment to individuals in this category and to compete with other employers who do not require extensive preemployment investigation. It is important that these individuals be productively employed in order to maintain their job interest and morale during the waiting period for full security clearance, to provide training through actual work experience, and to obtain a useful product in return for the substantial cost of maintaining the IAS.
2. The IAS provides a resource for performing a variety of routine work projects for components throughout the Agency. Since IAS personnel are not fully cleared, their work must be performed at the IAS location at 1016 16th St., NW., and it must, of course, be unclassified. IAS staff are available to supervise and review their work unless the office concerned prefers to provide direct supervision. Ordinary office supplies are stocked in IAS and arrangements can be made for stocking special supplies which might be needed for specific work projects.
3. Work projects which IAS has performed in the past have included straight-copy typing on various types of stencils, alphabetizing, cataloging, prenumbering forms, assembling kits of material, and the like. Several offices have taken advantage of this service by relying on it to perform certain jobs on a continuing basis, thereby relieving regular employees of a substantial routine workload. There is also a regular flow of work to the IAS from various offices which use this service to perform specific projects. The problem of providing sufficient work for IAS personnel during peak recruitment periods is, however, a perennial one, and the next several months will be critical since a large number of 1962 graduates of high schools and business schools will be entering on duty.
4. The purpose of this notice is to call attention to the service available so that all offices will consider whether they can take
